Our Visit to the Katonah Museum of Art

Photography courtesy of Margaret Fox

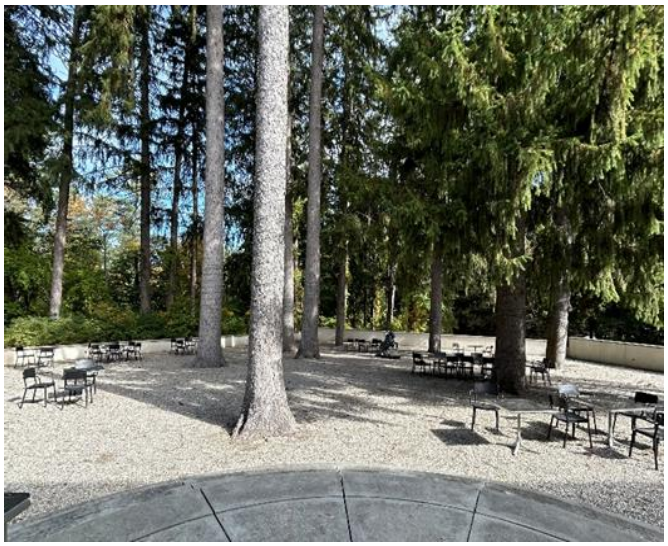

We are going to the Katonah Museum of Art, also known as the KMA. We will enter from the parking lot through the front door.

Photography courtesy of KMA Staff

As we enter the Atrium, we will see the reception desk. A Guest Services Associate (GSA) will greet us and check us in. If the Museum feels overwhelming, a GSA staff member can help us find headphones, fidget tools, books, or a quiet place.

The all-gender accessible bathrooms are to the right and left of us.

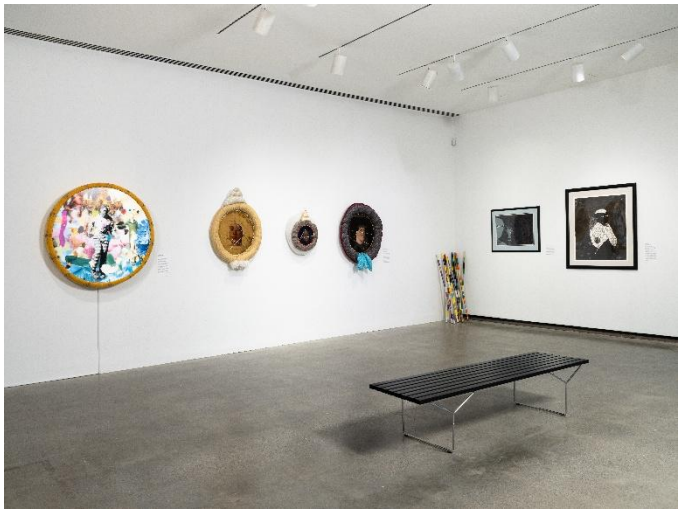

Photography courtesy of KMA Staff

Past the Atrium is the Marilyn M. Simpson Sculpture Garden. It is a place to rest or move around. If we bring a snack, we can eat it out there. The tall trees are called Norway Spruce.

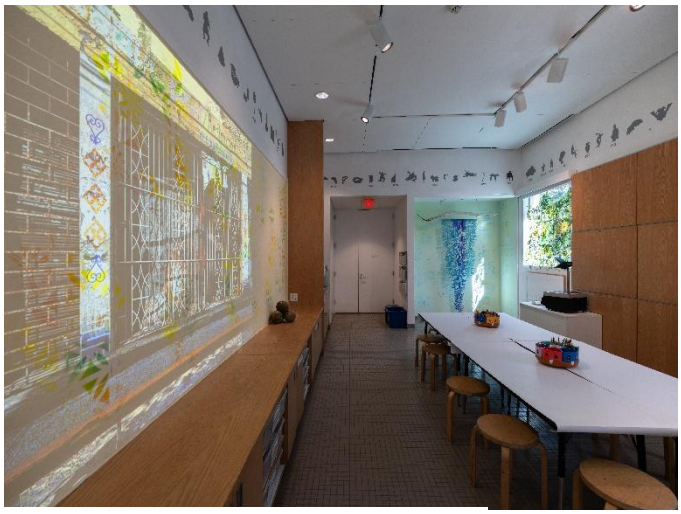

Photography courtesy of Jason Mandella

The current exhibition at the KMA is Intermittent Islands: Four Caribbean Women Artists. This exhibition has sculptures that sit on the floor and hang from the ceiling as well and ongoing sound in the Righter Gallery. We can look at the artwork, but we can't touch it.

Photography courtesy of Jason Mandella

We will need to stay a safe distance from the artwork and move carefully through the galleries. The GSA staff will also be in the room to help protect the art.

Photography courtesy of Jason Mandella

In The Pollack Family Learning Center, we will see Sonja John: Balikbayan, a site-specific installation for families. We can look at the artworks in the nook and on the windows, but we can not touch them.

Photography courtesy of KMA Staff

The Learning Center is our space to sit and talk, read, and make art. When we enter the room, the plastic bins below the counter to the left have lots of fun materials for us to use.

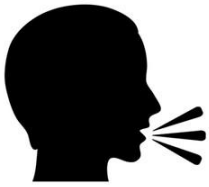

There is an overhead projector to play with light in our Shadow Garden in the nook. Please ask a GSA from the front desk if you have any questions or need help getting started!

Thank you for visiting the KMA today!

Museum Rules

Look, don’t touch the art

Speak quietly

Walk, don’t run

Be careful, stay 3 feet from the art

Have fun